

Diatonic scale using harmonics

Here's a little run that I found the other day. It's so logical that someone somewhere must have found it or used it before, but I haven't seen it print or even heard it played.

You will have to play the harmonics with your extended first finger right hand and play the string with your thumb. Then you can play the strings that have normal notes on with your second or third finger right hand.

The beauty of this particular run is that all of the positions are barred so, with practice, it can be moved into any key. And with a little speed it should prove to be quite a head turner.
